“ I met Mr Earchie in 96 or 97. I worked at express lube. I accidentally broke the oil filter base on his old international truck. I promised him I would make it right by making it better than original. I followed thru with it. Not knowing by doing so I would be gaining a friend that taught me so much about life. He helped me understand a veterans way of thinking. He taught me racism was taught, not bred. Earchie I love you brother and my family does as well. I told my girls you went to see Jesus. Last night, they ask Jesus to take care of you because you were their favorite family member that wasn't blood related. They asked him to let them know you made it ok. They woke up and said you talked to them and said you were ok. We miss you and will always love you brother. Rest easy AJ. See you when he calls us up yander.
