“ My most favorite memory is when me and Eric were able to finally build that bond we never had and being able to workout our differences and getting close with one another,you always knew the right things to say and was able to cheer me up when I had my own personal problems.you were smart and very intelligent and knew how to make me laugh when I was mad u always had my back when ppl talked down on me we shared stories on what career paths we wanted to peruse I remember telling u that I want to become an actor and when other ppl talked down on me in front of you you would jack them up lol I love very much and I'll see you when god brings me home
