“ John and I were high school pals, and did most of our talking and joking while standing in the long line during lunch hour. When approaching the line, he would always yell "Here comes a movie star!" He was indeed a humorous young man, whose jovial smile and laughter will never be forgotten. After graduation, that separation which often takes place, put an end to those joyful moments. And today, I must say goodbye to my high school pal, but this may not be forever, for there will be a grand reunion in heaven when Jesus returns for those of us who are awaiting His appearing. My prayers are for his family and friends, and that we will all be privileged to live in eternal bliss, where there will be no more separation.
