“ To everyone who has and do know my husband , I would like to say a few things about the love of my life ,I asked and said that I wanted a good man , and God gave me what I wanted and asked for. I cant say that no one understands my pain or my lost, I will say this I had him for twelve years. They were twelve of the best years, My Loving husband I will miss us talking in the midnight hour and later as I got off work and you were at work. We complemented each other and we loved each other as I still love you Paul , you did not have to worry about me, and I know that you did , my heart is hurting because I have lost the man that I was suppose to spend the rest of my life with ,I say this because baby , no ones knows how many sacrifices that you have made and that you make for me, all because you love me, Paul you really did it this time, I love you and I am grateful for you and all that you have done for me and the children, as your wife it is my duty to care and love you, I am saying this because you have been tired for so long ,and you were trying to go that extra mile for me, to insure that I would be ok when this day would come ,Didn't you know that I would have rather to have had my love ? the one who knows who understands me, who is there for me just as we promised each other in our wedding vows. Life is to short to keep postponing things that we wanted to do ,to say one more year or two more years, This is the conversation that I was going to have with you on Wednesday morning ,(I was) ,I should have told you, that the time is now and we need to stop postponing what we planed ,I do not and can not get a second chance to tell you. Your shoes are to big to be filled by anyone ,I love you forever .
