“ He was a good Husband, father, son, and brother. He treated me like a queen. He took time out to spend with me and our kids even after along day of work. He took our kids to the gym, helped with school projects, and never missed a school ceremony. He was a family man. We would play his n seek in the dark immediately after he got off work most days. Our kids would be thinking about their hiding spot all day. We had big plans for our future. We prayed together as a family because we wanted our kids to know who God was. This really hurtful that someone did this to my Honey bun. He never bothered anyone. He was good to everybody even the homeless. He would give them the shoes off his feet.
