“ Tommy and I were good friends since 1987; my life is richer for the honor of knowing such a kindhearted and generous man; a lively force of nature filled with energy and charisma; someone that everyone instinctively liked, who made me feel like the world was to be enjoyed and that life was an exciting ride. His years in NC were difficult but he and I often reminisced about the times in our youth in San Francisco which were almost dream-like in how much fun everything was, how we seemed to own the world and relished the thought of every new day- we really did. I grieve for my friend; I loved Tommy like a brother and arranged for mass to be said for him this Christmas day, and for friends to light a candle for him in Rome, Buenas Aires and in San Francisco- the city that he loved and which loved him back. Yes; a little candle lit all around the globe so the earth will take a moment to remember such a sweet and noble man. I hope, Tommy, that you are on a magnificent journey. Like the back cover to a messy unfinished manuscript, death brings a 'back cover' to it and turns your life into a finished masterpiece in the library of the Universe. Godspeed my friend. Dave
